The ChevronTexaco building is part of a two-building project located in the master-planned University Centre office park. With more than 53,000 employees worldwide, ChevronTexaco is one of the world's largest integrated energy companies. Their Energy Center, located in Bakersfield, California, includes a 100,000 square-foot building and an adjacent 45,000 square-foot building in a pedestrian-friendly environment.

The Energy Center functions as the headquarters office for ChevronTexaco's San Joaquin Valley oil and gas production business unit, and houses related functions including legal, tax, land, business services and public affairs. The two buildings accommodate 465 employees.
